U. S. TO RANSOM CAPTIVE FLYERS

New York, Aug. 18.—The recent formation of a corporation to supervise the screening of their own novels is the greatest sensation that the movie industry has yet produced. It was amazing enough when our secretary of the treasury went into the moving picture business, but that Rex Beach and Mary Roberts Rhinehart and several other well-known novelists should attempt to produce their own pictures is regarded as nothing less than epoch-making.

The new enterprise bears the name of the Eminent Authors Pictures corporation, the eminent authors being: Rex Beach, Mary Roberts Rhinehart, Rupert Hughes, Leroy Scott, and the Altherton, and Mary Roberts Rhinehart. The president is Rex Beach and the chief stockholder is Samuel Goldwyn, well-known moving picture producer.

The chief object of the organization, as announced by the members, is to improve the standard of screen versions. This is to be done by supervising each author to supervise the production of his own work. The writing of the story, or the scenarioizing of his story, will be under his direction; he will choose the player for each part, and he will select the place where the picture is to be made in order to secure the proper local color. In photographing Mr. Beach's story, "The Silver Horde," to example, the company will be sent to the northern Pacific coast, where pictures may be obtained of the great salmon canneries.

Authors to be featured.

Only authors are to be featured by the new corporation. The stars will be mentioned on the screen, of course, but it will be in small print. It is to be thoroughly understood that the story and not the star is the important consideration, which is something entirely new in the movie business. Heretofore, stories have always been selected to suit the personalities of various stars; now for the first time, the stars are to be selected to suit the characters in various stories.

In the past, and to a great extent in the present, it has been the custom of the movie producer to buy a story outright from the author, and then to put into his scenario department to be put into true movie form. Usually this process was referred to as "whipping the story into shape," and as Rupert Hughes put it, "it was usually a usually whipped, that the blood ran out and the shape was a ruin."

Author Disregarded.

The author of the story of play that had earned millions and earned fortunes, says Mr. Hughes, "was mysteriously supposed to be unable to contribute to the pictureization of his material anything important for the time and trouble of listening to him."

It is quite common for a continuity writer to eliminate certain characters altogether, and to insert others; to change the character of the hero as to play up the dimples or the small feet or any other particular asset of the star, and generally so to mutilate the entire story that the author is happily unable to recognize it, and the movie fan who home wonder, if they hadn't made a mistake in supposing they had read the thing. In some instances, companies have paid five and ten the author for a story and then have made use of nothing but the title and the author's name.

In excuse of this practice, the movie people have always declared that the average novel is so full of holes that it is an entirely different matter to explain an incident by dialogue, they point out, and to explain it by pictures. Like the theater, the screen has certain technicalities which the novelist does not understand. Furthermore, experience has shown that certain things are successful on the screen, so far as the public is concerned, and that some things are tremendously unsuccessful. It is impossible, for instance, to make the public like a picture in which the heroine is not a sweet, good-natured little creature, who is always being rescued by a hero who is always being noble and at the same time athletic, while no moving picture audience will tolerate a picture which does not end with a fade-out, an embracing couple, with an enappily subtitle to the effect that they lived

FAR EAST SAW WAR IN PEACE PACT

SHANTUNG PROVISION MEANT FIGHTING, WRITER TELLS SENATE.

MILLARD TELLS DETAILED STORY

Says China Was Placed In Embarrassing Position, and Isolation.

Washington, Aug. 18.—It was the unanimous opinion of American experts on far eastern affairs at Versailles that war must result from the peace treaty provisions giving control in the Chinese province of Shantung to the senate foreign relations committee was told today by Thomas F. Millard, an American writer, who was attached to the Chinese peace delegation.

Concluding a detailed story of the Shantung negotiations which he said came directly from delegates at the conference, Mr. Millard said:

"Says China is isolated."

"In my opinion, if a war plot had set out deliberately to put China in an embarrassing position, the outcome could not have been more unfortunate than China has lost out entirely on her Shantung claim. By reason of advice given her by the United States, she did not raise at all other questions in which she was interested. And by her refusal to sign the treaty under those circumstances she is completely isolated."

"When Prof. E. T. Williams, for years of far eastern affairs, heard of the Shantung agreement, he said: 'This means war.' And every American expert has heard, but do not know whether it is true, that General Bliss' letter to the president on the subject contained a statement to the same effect."

TRAFFIC SNARL RESULTS IN N. Y. SUBWAY TIE-UP

New York, Aug. 17.—More than two million persons crowded the transit company's subway and elevated daily in Manhattan, the Bronx, Brooklyn, and Queens today either took slow moving surface cars and time, or walked to work as a result of a strike of the company's 14,000 employees, for a 60 percent increase in wages, as Sunday, when the strike became effective, got a wheel turned on the company's 250 miles of track.

The stoppage of the main arteries of travel caused the worst traffic snarl in the history of the city. The way was fairly congested during the early morning hours. A pouring rain added to the discomfort.

Thousands of cabs and buses, operated by the city filled to capacity with workers, clogged the thoroughfares. Thousands fought in vain for standing room on each overcrowded trolley car. Trolleys and other vehicles moved at a snail's pace. Residents on the outer fringe of the city were unable to reach their destination or places of employment until many hours after their usual time, and in consequence, New York was crippled in consequence.

The New York Central railroad operated 26 extra trains of 10 cars each between Hudson and Harlem river points to the Grand Central station on these trains caused an unprecedented congestion at the great terminal.

Fleets of ferries and other craft, pressed hurriedly into service, plied the Hudson and East rivers, carrying passengers between the upper and lower ends of Manhattan island for the first time in many years.

An effort to reach an agreement between the Interborough and the city's transit leaders will be made this afternoon at a conference with Public Services Commissioner Nix.

Ukrainians Ask Polish Aid in Capturing Kiev

Vladivostok, Saturday, Aug. 16.—It is reported that the non-bolshevik Ukrainians have invited the Poles to help them capture Kiev, promising to share the spoils of the bolsheviks would get otherwise.

Odesa was the last important city along the Black Sea held by the bolsheviks. The reported loss of the city and the capture of Kiev and the Ukraine, if correct, take from bolshevik control the important agricultural territory of European Russia.

Says Business Opposes U. S. Rail Ownership

Washington, Aug. 18.—Business sentiment in the United States is unanimous that government ownership of railroads must not prevail, Charles A. Poy, chairman of the railroad committee of the United States chamber of commerce, said today.

Reasons against it, he contended, were heavy costs and the necessity of financing government extension through congressional appropriations with consequent subjection to political influence.

Rumanian King Visits Budapest Incognito

Budapest, Saturday, Aug. 16.—King Ferdinand of Rumania, accompanied by his wife, visited here last week incognito. Four Hungarian monitors, manned by British seamen, have arrived here.

Archduke Joseph, head of the Hungarian state, denied today that he had received a letter from former Emperor Charles as charged in dispatches from Budapest. The latter, it is alleged, ordered him to take over the power in Hungary and thanked him for his services to the Hapsburg dynasty.

Police Are Militarized in Germany

Coblenz, Saturday, Aug. 10.—Militarization of German police, contrary to the terms of the treaty of peace, has already begun, according to information reaching American authorities. In the city of Coblenz the police recently were completely organized along military lines by the Prussian government, it is said.

Americans studying the reorganization of the German army say that the significance of militarizing in Germany is that American officers have records of an announcement that the Prussian state government was to organize a state police force which would be virtually military units in garrisons with full infantry equipment, but would be in control of the minister of the interior and used only for the repression of internal disorders. These troops, according to the plan, were to be in excess of the army permitted Germany under the terms of the peace treaty.

CRISIS IS IN BALANCE WITH MEXICO

AMERICAN EMBASSY INSTRUCTED TO DEMAND QUICK ACTION ON RELEASE.

ALL POSSIBLE STEPS TAKEN

State Department To Give Fund For Freedom; Aviator's Father Raises Money.

(By Associated Press.)

Washington, Aug. 18.—The American embassy at Mexico City was instructed today by the state department to immediately call upon the Mexican government for quick action to affect the release of Lieut. Paul H. Davis and Harold G. Peterson, American army aviators who were captured by Mexican bandits near Candelaria, Texas, while patrolling the border and who are threatened with death unless $15,000 ransom is paid today.

The state department's announcement said the instructions pointed out the seriousness with which the United States government views this situation and called for immediate adequate action. The American consul at Mexico City was instructed to take all possible steps with the Mexican authorities there to secure release and protection of the officers.

Ransom to Be Paid.

State department officials said the ransom demanded would be paid as soon as information could be had as to where and to whom the money was to be delivered. It has not been decided whether the United States would furnish the sum and charge it against the Carranza government or call upon the Mexican government to pay it direct.

The secretary Baker told a senate committee that there was some uncertainty as to whether the aviators had landed by mistake in Mexico or, as they claimed, had landed on the American side and were captured there. He added, however, that he did not care to go into any more details than those already published.

"But it is just another evidence of the inability of the Mexican government to preserve order in that country," he said, "asked Senator Sutherland, republican."

The secretary replied that the men had been captured in the Big Bend country, which he explained was "wild and sparsely settled."

Mr. Baker referred before the committee to testify regarding the war department's plans for a permanent military policy for the country.

Payment Is Authorized.

Marfa, Tex., Aug. 18.—Authorization for payment of the $15,000 ransom asked by Mexican bandits for the release of Lieutenants Davis and Peterson was received here today and the person was probably will be delivered late today to an agent of the bandits at or near Candelaria, Texas, it was announced here.

Rescue Efforts Hurdled.

El Paso, Texas, Aug. 18.—Every effort was being made today to expedite the rescue of Lieutenants Paul H. Davis and Harold G. Peterson, who were held for ransom of $15,000 by Mexican bandits, somewhere in Mexico south of the Big Bend district of west Texas.

While an official announcement was made by the military authorities, it was understood that the ransom money had been arranged for at a local bank and that a messenger would be started for Candelaria, Texas, where he would receive instructions about handing over the gold to an agent of the bandits. Cattlemen are lending the cowboy campaign for Fort Davis, Texas, also said $15,000.

40 Billion Pounds Spent for War Destruction

London, Aug. 18.—The war cost 40 billion pounds, Premier Lloyd-George declared in his speech in the house of commons today on the financial and industrial situation. Most of the sum was spent for purposes of destruction.

He asserted that the change from war to peace conditions would take just as long as the change from peace to war. The outstanding fact of the present situation was the alarming adverse trade balance, he said.

The import restrictions which will terminate September 1, he said, would be a great help to the manufacturers of goods which otherwise would have been hurried here from foreign countries.

The national debt, he declared, had grown from $41,000,000 pounds to 7,800,000,000 pounds.

He urged that a joint secretariat be set up in the league of nations instead of having a single secretariat in the shadow of the steeple of Westminster."

THAT WE MAY GROW

People are beginning to leave Janesville; they are going away from this city. The sad part of it all is that it shouldn't be so.

The danger mark is being set. Janesville is full. Her hotels turn would-be-guests away daily; two-thirds of her homes are rooming houses to a greater or less degree; the boom is on; some are living in barracks and others sleep under canvas.

Indeed, yes, Janesville is full. And there are those here who have not yet realized the condition of our city; then there are those who realize but who will not act.

A manufacturer said today three employees of his, told him they would have to go elsewhere because their dwellings had been sold and there is none to take their place.

And there are others. We know.

Isn't it a crying shame that we should be so near-sighted with the vast areas of vacant land about us and within us. The stern reality will be borne to us when some day we will find that our balloon is punctured—we shall deserve to find it so.

No city in this country has a greater opportunity to be something, to be a power among its fellows, to be an industrial leader, than has Janesville.

And all of this for want of homes. A dwelling house in which labor may be housed. A house to be made a home that Janesville may grow, and grow, and grow.

We're going to have this place up."

In a fight with police which ensued, a number of shots were fired in the air. No one was hurt seriously, having carried bruised heads, and a few carried contact with policemen's clubs.

CONGRESS GETS DOWN TO ACTUAL WORK ON H. C. L. LEGISLATION.

PACKERS HEARINGS HELD IN SENATE

Kenyon and Gronna Declare Bill Is Radical With Teeth In It.

(By Associated Press)

Washington, Aug. 18.—Congress planned to get down to actual work today on legislation designed to aid in reducing the cost of living. The house committee on agriculture was expected to report on amendments to the food control act providing a criminal penalty for violation and extending its application to wearing apparel. Continued consideration of cold storage legislation was the order of business for the house interstate commerce commission.

Before the senate agriculture committee today the problems of packers, their alleged monopoly of preparing and distributing meat, and their alleged policy of expanding their business enterprises to the point of controlling the supply of other foods, came up for an investigation in the hearing on the Kenyon bill to extend federal control over the packing industry.

Gronna In Statement

Senator Gronna, committee chairman, prefaced the proceedings with a brief statement of conditions which he said were leading to a general demand for limitation of corporate profits. So did Senator Kenyon.

"This is a radical bill, with teeth in it, which deserves the most careful scrutiny, but it is not a government ownership bill," said Senator Kenyon. "It provides for a new method of corporate control in this country. It is a bill to take the monopoly of packers, the disbursement from them of stockyards ownership and the elimination of their control of refrigerator cars. 'Meat packing is no longer a private business, it has become a public utility. It has grown to the extent we understand it is intolerable. There may be a little efficiency growing out of it, but that is temporary."

"We are not engaged in an attack on private profits, though the propaganda of the packers has frightened business since this bill came up, and may have frightened congress out of the attempt to legislate. We are not trying to induce business nor stop reasonable profits, but excess profits today are reasonable profits."

FATE OF 1920 LABOR CANDIDATE AT STAKE

Alleged Auto Thief

Says He is Wronged

P. D. Hill, the man who readily consented to return to Point Pleasant, W. Va., in custody of an officer, despite his assertions that he was not guilty of stealing an automobile, is today enroute to the West Virginia town.

An officer arrived in the city Saturday night and left early yesterday morning with Hill. The latter, who was arrested at the St. Charles hotel about a week ago, admitted that he had sold the car in Waterloo, Ia., but insisted that he bought the car in Point Pleasant and gave a certified check in payment.

Hill readily consented to waive extradition and said he was glad to be able to have the opportunity of returning to Point Pleasant and proving his innocence.

MISSION OF CHURCH IN PRESENT CRISIS TOLD BY REV. LEWIS

An earnest sermon on the mission of the church in the present crisis of events was preached by Rev. Franklin P. Lewis yesterday at the morning service at the Methodist church. The speaker from the text, "And when they had lifted up their eyes, they saw no man except Christ only." From this passage he emphasized the thought that it is the duty of the church to hold high the standard of Christ, and to be loyal to his precepts.

A vivid word picture of the scene where the words were spoken to the top of Mt. Palesine. "Here it was said the view was unrivaled; to the north and east were located the cities of Babylon, Nineveh and Damascus; to the south, Capernaum; the winding Jordan river, and the Dead sea. But to these the disciples gave no heed, although they were enraptured scenes, and were of great interest, yet they saw no one but Jesus only."

The speaker outlined different phases of church activities in ancient times, as for instance, the period when church effort seemed to center around the building of great cathedrals. "The genius of architecture had expended its force in times past and yet had it succeeded in winning the church to Christ," he said. He also noted that at one time engaged the attention of the church authorities, and altar pictures, madonnas and frescoes were all painted for the glory of the church, and yet did not win the world for Christ.

"Time was," he said, "when the church turned to music to win converts, and great pipe organs were installed, and the talents in composing great harmonies for the church services. These too failed," he said, "in their purpose of winning the world for Christ."

The present age he considered as rather hard to classify, in regard to its distinctive characteristics. But he thought it would be distinguished by an unprecedented accumulation of wealth by the realization of popular government among the countries of the earth; by remarkable achievements of science as for instance in electricity, in the submarine, and airplane; in the development of medical science in conserving health; and also in the utilization of the natural forces of the earth in the service of mankind.

He asked the question as to whether there ought not to be a great movement of the church in this nineteenth century, which might lead the way toward the common betterment of the human race. He felt that the world was lying up on the great moral questions of the day, that it was the mission of the church to hold the moral idealism of his life of Christ.

"It should be the champion of the rights of man, and should aid in giving opportunity for happiness and salvation for everybody," he said. "The supreme message of Jesus was to his mind the words 'Greater Love has no man than this, that he lay down his life for a friend.' In closing he mentioned the fact that Peter wanted to remain on the mountain top, but that his master reminded him that duty lay down among the common people in the valley below."

A chorus choir led by Miss Clara Shawhan assisted in the singing of the hymns.

In the evening the union church services were held in the Court House park with the usual attendance. Rev. J. Hart, Duquesne preached the sermon, using as his text, Proverbs, chapter 18, verse 24. "There is a friend which sticketh closer than a brother." Rev. J. A. Meisinger presided at the meeting. The men's chorus directed by E. E. Van Pool sang a selection and led in the community singing.

Voice of the People

To the Editor,
Janesville Gazette.

Dear Sir:
It would be useless to look for the reason of the high cost of living as proceeding from individuals or that the high cost of living is a personal proposition as to its source than fair observation of the land question may uncover the fundamental cause of our economic wreck. Searching individuals or corporations will not find them in possession of anything—generally speaking—that the law does not allow to every other individual. But it can be seen that there is legally a holding out of use by a few, unlimited resources of natural wealth, the development of which, without privilege, but with equal opportunity, would break the "natural corner" that appears to exist in our prime necessities and so restore a harmonious and equitable basis. An economical increased production of everything is the need but that cannot be expected with the present enormous area of natural resources that is not available to development at a legitimate market value for use. The reason of this is that land of all kinds can be held out of use indefinitely at a much less price as it would bring in an open market. This would indicate the economic value of land and not the buying and selling value which takes care of itself.

We have the ballot always—what we appear to need in connection with it is a little study of simple truths and thus be able to dispense with complex and intricate theories, agreements, and considerations. With liberty, freedom and justice cooperation will appear as an effect and not as a cause.

Yours respectfully,
DAVID C. DAVIES,
Fort Atkinson, Wis., Aug. 16.

To the Editors:

It is not clear why people are permitted to drop cats in the country, to be stoned and clubbed by thoughtless boys, chased by dogs, bitten and torn by cats where traveling, and are surrounded by "pestered" people, parched and agonized by thirst and slow starvation? To shed their burdens carelessly on whom they fall. No doubt those who are church members and consider themselves Christians. Can you imagine Christ doing a thing like that? If they will but consider that every life is a matter how long it has the same Divine parentage, and are our little brothers on their upward way, perhaps we should be more merciful and just. Three poor, tiny orphans were dropped here yesterday, the third donation of the kind, and emphatically not wanted.

EMINENT AUTHORS PRODUCING OWN WRITINGS IN MOVIES

happily ever after. The picture business was permitted to commit suicide by jumping into a live volcano, but that was because death in this instance was preferable to certain living conditions which are now being lived.

With these specific rules laid down early in the movie game, it was only natural that for a long time screen versions of famous or successful novels were not overwhelmingly popular. One frequently heard it stated throughout the industry that the only really successful movies were those written by men and women who were not over-enthusiastically popular. This was encouraging, because it was supposed to indicate that the movies were developing their own particular form of expression, and were not being swayed by the novel scenario was the modest conviction of the stars that the picture didn't really matter anyway—that the public usually cared for the movies to see their favorite players.

Such was the situation when Ben Hampton of publishing fame entered the moving picture business. He was not a writer, but he was a publisher, and he viewed into the industry, and who raised the prestige of the author in the movies by permitting him to make suggestions as to the screening of his stories. Hampton, who is now known as Great Authors Pictures, Inc., with Rex Beach, Zane Grey, Stewart Edward White, Irving Bachelor, Winston Churchill and others under his banner, "The Barrier," proved a great success, although the author had supervised the writing of the continuity, had picked the locations, chosen the actors, and had supervised the cutting of the film.

Authors Kept Away.
As a result of these successes, the whole industry became intensely interested in authors. It still clung to the opinion that the author should be kept away from the studio, however, and attributed the success of Hampton's picture solely to the popularity of his authors. Hampton, however, seemed to see at once that the million or so people who had read some author's stories in one of our large American magazines and had liked them would naturally want to see the same stories on the screen. So the author became the rage—or, to be absolutely correct, the successful author, with a loud emphasis on the adjective.

Conspicuous sums for the picture rights of novels or plays, and to feature the authors' names above the names of the stars. And now the wildest kind of a scramble for taking place among all the producers to capture successful authors and sign them up before their competitors get them. According to one movie authority, in a few months there won't be one successful author left who is not under contract.

While Hampton was the first man who first introduced the successful author into the moving picture business, it is the Eminent Authors who, in two months, which has startled the industry into action. Hampton could always be regarded as an outsider, an experimenter and a visionary, but Samuel Goldwyn is supposed to be a producer. He is a success of it, no one can longer deny that the author is incapable of making good as a producer. Already there is a new cordiality toward the author who ventures to offer a few suggestions as to the screening of his work, and in some instances he has even been called up on the telephone and consulted.

The Supervises Movie.
Meanwhile, the eminent authors are quietly going about their work of revolutionizing movie methods. Gertrude Atherton is out on the Pacific coast supervising the production of the novel, "The Perch of the Devil," and Basil King is working on the filming of his "Street Called Straight." In the east the public is being educated to look for the author and not for the picture. Whether or not the movies will from now on lose their peculiar identity and become a literary sideline still remains to be seen, of course. The movie authority seems to think that the present mania for authors is merely a passing phase, which makes a very clever talking point in selling new pictures. After a time, he says, the authors will get tired of all the fuss and find it easier to receive their money outright for their stories than to work for months on a picture and then see it fail, especially on a royalty basis.

WITH THE WOMEN OF TODAY

The Princess Chunks Champ-Pu-La, otherwise Miss Georgia Lee Medlock, full-blooded Cherokee Indian from Sequah county, Oklahoma, is in New York studying music.

"I am having my voice trained," she says, "to show the world that real Indians these days are going in for culture. In our tribe which consists of about 80,000 people, the uneducated man or woman is the exception. Many of our men are college graduates and are in good standing both in the professional and business circles."

The princess first went on the concert stage when asked to sing for some soldiers in camp. She is proud of her part in the war and also of the fact that the Oklahoma Indians sent 3,750 men to the war. Her two brothers who were sent overseas never came back. They were used as scouts, being adapted by natural instinct for such work.

Miss Medlock is the descendant of a long line of chiefs. Her father, Boone Chambers, was ruler of his tribe, and her grandfather, Red Cloud Brewer, was also a chief.

She was born in Sequah county, Oklahoma, 27 years ago, and educated at St. Agnes academy, Memphis, Tenn. She spoke no English until she was 12 years old. For the last three years she has studied music under Laurent Chevaux and she is now in New York for further training. She expects to complete her studies in Europe. Her voice is a fine dramatic soprano.

When speaking of her vast lands in the west the princess said: "The Indians worship the memory of Theodor Roosevelt and in his lifetime they adored the man. He is the only president who ever gave us a square deal. He arranged that we should pay no taxes on our land—that which fell to our portion when statehood came in—for 21 years."

HERE AND THERE
Wages of female machine operators in Tennessee increased 50 percent during 1918.

Of the 139,588 workers employed in the over 1,500 establishments in Tennessee, 21.4 percent are women.

Many of the women factory workers in Great Britain are widows of soldiers or sailors killed in the war. The biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, to be held in 1920, will be the fourteenth.

Miss Pauline Goldmark of the railroad administration guards the interests of all women in the railroad employ.

Manitowoc.—The resignation of the registrar at the office of the county probate judge has brought the county face to face with the salary question again. At the spring meeting of the county board increases to the various deputies at the court house were refused since which time a number have resigned. The latest resignation caused a meeting of the salary committee and they have promised the young lady who accepted the position of registrar that her wages would be increased as soon as the board met in the fall. Now the other clerks and deputies want raises also.

WHOS WHO in the Day's News

MAJ. GEN. JAMES G. HARBORD. Major General James G. Harbord was in command of the Second division, U. S. Army, during the last of the Chateau-Thierry offensive to the end of the attack at Soissons.

General Harbord enlisted in the army as a private in Company A of the Fourth Infantry in January 1889, and won a commission as second lieutenant of cavalry in 1891. He served in the Spanish-American war as a major and after the end of that war saw service in the Philippines.

When General Harbord was sent to France in May, 1917, he took General Harbord with him as chief of staff. General Harbord served in this capacity until May, 1918, when he was made commander of the marine brigade of the Second division.

When the division was withdrawn from Chateau-Thierry, General Harbord succeeded General Bundy as division commander and led the division at Soissons, where it took part in the attack in conjunction with the American division and General Mangin's French divisions. After Soissons General Harbord left the division to take over the command of the service of supplies, the extent and importance of whose work demanded that it have as its head one of the best officers in the A. E. F. In this position General Harbord remained until May, 1919, when he again became chief of staff of the A. E. F.

What article of wearing apparel does the name "Luby" recall? You guessed right—good shoes.

Strike Demands Denied. Grand Rapids.—Reports which state that the strikers of the Nekoosa-Edwards mills are making unusual demands in their fight for recognition are denied by the former employees. Claims that the men are asking representation on the board of directors of the company are flatly denied by the strikers, who say that these reports are being circulated to convey the impression that they are at fault because the strike is not settled. The demands of the men are: 8-hour day for all men, time and a half for overtime and right of collective bargaining through chosen representatives of the union. The mill at Port Edwards was put into operation this week with a crew composed of a number of former employees who have returned to work, assisted by labor which has been imported. Guards are on duty at the plant.

Apple Crop Large. Sturgeon Bay.—The apple season will open next month at Sturgeon Bay. There are hundreds of acres of apple orchards in the city which produce thousands of barrels of apples annually. This season the apple crop promises to be exceptionally large. The plum crop will soon be ripe, and some of that fruit. It is estimated the cannery will pack about ten tons of plums.

The new pavilion with a dance floor 50x30 will be constructed by the Saxo Band orchestra and they will conduct the venture during the fair which this year will be a day and night affair for the first time in a number of years.

SPORT SNAP-SHOTS

BY JACK KEENE.

Some of the modern baseball historians are telling their readers that the Cincinnati Reds never have won a pennant. Others insist that Cincinnati hasn't been represented by a winning ball club for 50 years. Back in 1880 the famous Cincinnati Red Stockings went through the entire season without being defeated and were hailed as world champions.

The team was composed of Brainard, pitcher; Allison, catcher; Gould, Sweeney and Waterman on the bases; George Wright, shortstop; Leonard, Harry Wright (manager) and McVey, in the outfield. The Cincinnati Reds won the championship of the American Association in 1882, finishing in front of Brooklyn, Cincinnati, Harrisburg, Reading, Wilmington, Pottsville and Covington clubs.

A millionaire sportsman, one Harry Wardman of Washington, has offered $5,000 in gold as a prize for the world's golf championship to be decided this fall or spring. His idea would be to have the leading pair of golfers from every country in the world take part.

"I have no particular qualifications to add to my offer," said Wardman. "It will be left to the golf association of each country to choose the two candidates in any way suitable to itself. The ideal way, of course, would be for America to enter Jim Barnes and Walter Hagen as its representatives against the best British, Canadian and French golfers. My idea is merely to force world attention upon the game, which is rapidly gaining in popularity everywhere."

According to the report, the Columbia Country club course is now being groomed for the 1920 championship, under the eye of Dr. Harban, vice president of the United States Golf association.

Assessments Go Down. Appleton.—Prohibition, resulting in a decreased valuation in brewery and saloon property, is given as the chief cause of a decrease of $92,075 in the assessed valuation of Appleton. In 1918 the valuation was placed at $21,378,318 and this year at $21,286,243. There are 135 fewer horses than a year ago. Nine hundred and thirteen automobiles are assessed.

but you will see two old favorites, Creighton Hale and Marc MacDermott. Marc gets killed in the play but who kills him is the nice mystery which makes the plot.

"The Thirteenth Chair" is taken from the stage play of the same name which was written by Bayard Veiller. Certainly no play ever fooled the audience so thoroughly as this mystery of Veiller's and the picture is no less mystifying which is an unusual achievement on the part of Leonce Perret who adapted the play for the screen. The picture is wonderful, full, and even brilliant. The interest is caught with the first scene and is held tense and sustained until the picture's finish.

Much as I should like to tell you the story of the play it would be a shame to spoil the complete surprise. In the main it deals with a clairvoyant, Mme. La Grange called by the police to assist in the apprehension of a murderer. Before the close of the picture everybody in the cast including the clairvoyant herself. The parts are well taken, Marie Shotwell playing Mme. La Grange, the part created by Annie Russell in the stage version.

OH CHARLIE!

Charlie Chaplin is planning to realize his lifelong ambition to present Shakespearean plays—comedies, preferably—on the legitimate stage. Chaplin's intention is serious.

"There are just as many laughs in Shakespeare in 1919 as there were in the days of Queen Elizabeth," he says. "Yes, it is true that I am collaborating with Reginald Pole on a new creation."

But for further information it was necessary to select Pole, who is a British Shakespearean, Pole declared. "I shall play with Chaplin."

"Chaplin is making a serious study of Shakespeare," Pole declared. "I predict for him success. It will not surprise me to see him make the start before the end of the year. Probably, however, he will try it first in some town where he will appear incognito."

Alice Lake announced jubilantly a sort time ago that she was through with comedy. Serious stuff for her, well, she's changed her mind again. She's signed up to appear in Christie comedies. She used to play with Patty Arbuckle.

Another sound of pain, close to George, followed it; this was a vehement sniffling which broke out just above him, and, looking up, he saw Fanny Minafer on the landing, leaning over the banisters and applying her handkerchief to her eyes and nose.

"I can guess what that was about," she whispered huskily. "He's just told her what you did to Eugene!"

George gave her a dark look over his shoulder. "You go on back to your room!" he said; and he began to descend the stairs; but Fanny, guessing his purpose, rushed down and caught his arm, detaining him.

"You're not going in there?" she whispered huskily. "You don't—"

"Let go of me!"

But she clung to him savagely. "No, you don't, George Minafer! You'll keep away from there! You will!"

"You let go of—"

"I won't! You come back here! You'll come upstairs and let them alone; that's what you'll do!" And with such passionate determination did she clutch and tug, never losing a grip of him somewhere, though George tried as much as he could, without hurting her, to wrench away—with such utter forgetfulness of her maiden dignity did she assault him, that she forced him, stumbling upward, to the landing.

"Of all the ridiculous—" he began furiously;—but she spared no hand from its grasp of his sleeve and clapped it over his mouth. "Hush up!" never for an instant in this grotesque struggle did Fanny raise her voice above a husky whisper. "Hush up! It's indecent—like snuffling outside the door of an operating room! Go on to the top of the stairs—go on!"

And when George had most unwillingly obeyed, she planted herself in his way, on the top step. "There!" she said. "The idea of your going in there now! I never heard of such a thing!" And with the sudden departure of the nervous vigor she had shown so amazingly, she began to cry again. "I was an awful fool. Do you suppose I dreamed you'd go making everything into such a tragedy? Do you?"

"I don't care what you dreamed," George muttered.

But Fanny went on, always taking care to keep her voice from getting too loud. In spite of her most grievous agitation. "Do you dream I thought you'd go making such a fool of yourself at Mrs. Johnson's? Oh, I saw her this morning! She wouldn't talk to me, but I met George Amberson on my way back, and he told me what you'd done over there! And do you dream I thought you'd do what you've done here this afternoon to Eugene? Oh, I knew that, too! Of course he went to George Amberson about it, and that's why George is here. He's got to tell Isabel the whole thing now, and you wanted to go in there interfering—God knows what! You stay here and let her brother tell her; he's got some consideration for her!"

"I suppose you think I haven't!" George said, and at that Fanny laughed witheringly.

"You! Considerate of anybody!"

"I'm considerate of her good name," he said hotly. "It seems to me that's about the first thing to be considerate of, in being considerate of a person!"

And look here; it strikes me you're taking a pretty different tack from what you did yesterday afternoon!"

Fanny wrung her hands. "I did a terrible thing!" she lamented. "Now that it's done and too late, I know what it was! I didn't have sense enough just to let things go on. I didn't have any business to interfere, and I didn't mean to interfere—I only wanted to talk, and let out a little! I did think you already knew everything I told you. I did! And I'd rather have cut off my hand than stir you up to doing what you have done! I was just suffering so that I wanted to let out a little—I didn't mean any real harm. But now I see what's happened—or, I was a fool! I haven't any business interfering. Eugene never would have looked at me, anyhow, and, oh, why couldn't I have seen that before! He never came here a single time in his life except on her account, never! And I might have let them alone, because he wouldn't have looked at me even if he'd never seen Isabel; she made Wilbur happy, and she was a true wife to him as long as he lived. It wasn't a crime for her to care for Eugene all the time; she certainly never told him she did—and she gave me every chance in the world; she let us alone together every time she could—even since Wilbur died—but what was the use? And here I go, not doing myself a bit of good by it, and just—Fanny wrung her hands again—just ruining them!"

"I suppose you mean I'm doing that," George said bitterly.

"No, she doesn't let anybody know, but she goes to the doctor regularly."

"Women are always going to doctors regularly."

"No, he told her to."

George was not impressed. "It's nothing at all; she spoke of it to me years ago—some kind of family falling. She said grandfather had it, too; and look at him! Hasn't proved very serious with him! You act as if I'd done something wrong in sending that man about his business, and as if I were going to persecute my mother, instead of protecting her. By Jove, it's sickening! You told me how all the riffraff in town were busy with her name, and then the minute I lift my hand to protect her, you begin to attack me and—"

"Sh!" Fanny checked him, laying her hand on his arm. "Your uncle is going!"

The library doors were heard opening, and a moment later there came the sound of the front door closing.

George moved toward the head of the stairs, then stood listening, but the house was silent.

Fanny made a slight noise with her lips to attract his attention, and, when he glanced toward her, shook her head at him urgently. "Let her alone," she whispered. "She's down there by herself. Don't go down. Let her alone."

She moved a few steps toward him and halted, her face pallid and awestruck, and then both stood listening for anything that might break the silence downstairs. No sound came to them; that poignant silence was continued throughout long, long minutes, while the two listeners stood there under its mysterious spell; and in its plaintive eloquence—speaking, as it did, of the figure alone in the big, dark library, where dead Wilbur's silver frame gleamed in the dimness—there was something that checked even George.

Fanny Minafer broke the long silence with a sound from her throat, a stifled gasp; and with that great companion of hers, her handkerchief, retired softly to the loneliness of her own chamber. After she had gone George looked about him bleakly, then on tiptoe crossed the hall and went into his own room, which was filled with twilight. Still tiptoeing, though he could not have said why, he went across the room and sat down heavily in a chair facing the window. Outside there was nothing but the darkening air and the wall of the nearest of the new houses. He had not slept at all the night before and he had eaten nothing since the preceding day at lunch, but he felt neither drowsiness nor hunger. His set determination filled him, kept him but too wide awake, and his gaze at the grayness beyond the window was wide-eyed and bitter.

Darkness had closed in when there was a step in the room behind him. Then someone knelt beside the chair, two arms went round him with infinite compassion, a gentle head rested against his shoulder, and there came the faint scent of apple-blossoms far away.

"You mustn't be troubled darling," his mother whispered.

CHAPTER XVII.

George choked. For an instant he was on the point of breaking down, but he commanded himself, bravely dismissing the self pity roused by her compassion. "How can I help but be?" he said.

"No, no." She soothed him. "You mustn't. You mustn't be troubled, no matter what happens."

"That's easy enough to say!" he protested; and he moved as if to rise.

"Just let's stay like this a little while, dear. Just a minute or two. I want to tell you: Brother George has been here, and he told me everything about—about how unhappy you'd been—and how you went so gallantly to that old woman. Isabel gave a sad little laugh. "What a terrible old woman she is! What a really terrible thing a vulgar old woman can be!"

"Mother, I—" And again he moved to rise.

"Must you? It seemed to me, such a comfortable way to talk. Well—" She yielded; he rose, helped her to her feet, and pressed the light into being. As the room took life from the sudden lines of fire within the bulbs Isabel made a deprecatory gesture, and, with a faint laugh of apologetic protest, turned quickly away from George.

What she meant was: "You mustn't see my face until I've made it nice for you." Then she turned again to him her eyes downcast but no sign of tears in them, and she contrived to show him that there was the semblance of a smile upon her lips. She still wore her hat, and in her unsteady fingers she held a white envelope, somewhat crumpled.

"Now, mother—" (TO BE CONTINUED)

The Swedes are often said to be not an emotional race. Even was nursing the logs down the decline leading to the big saw in the mill. The superintendent passed that way. "This ban too much work for one man," Sven told him, "I need help." "All right," replied the superintendent, "I'll send John down here to help you." An hour passed. Superintendent again passed that way. Sven had the same complaint. "This ban too much work for one man," he said. "Why, I sent John to help you," said the superintendent. "Where is he?" "Oh, Yohn—oh, he ain't been here for quite a while—where did he go?" "Oh, he went down between two logs. I think he quit his job."

"Don't talk to me about the wonders of past ages," said Uncle Joe Cannon. "The world today is far more wonderful than ever before. Just think of it! It took Columbus as many months as it now takes days to cross the ocean, and we talk about flying and traveling a mile a minute as though they were nothing!"

"Why, the other day I dropped into a country school just in time to hear the teacher say:

"Johnny, into what two great classes is the human race divided?" and Johnny answered promptly:

"Motorists and pedestrians."

"That's what I call progress. After a while there won't be any pedestrians."

"Was papa the first man who ever proposed to you, mamma?"

"Yes; but why do you ask?"

"I was just thinking that you might have done better if you had shopped around a little more."

THE WISHING PLANE

WILLIE WINTER

Jane was just as interested as Jack was when Captain Brave told them how the Swiss children had great sport in the winter going to and from school on skis. Of course, neither of the children ever had seen a pair of skis, so Captain Brave showed them a pair which lay in the basement of the chalet. Each ski was a piece of wood about eight feet long and about as wide as a shoe. One end of each was turned up and pointed. There was a leather loop in the center of each one into which your shoe slips when you use the skis.

"It takes a lot of practice to learn to use the skis," said Captain Brave. "At first you can't keep them running straight ahead. They get crossed and tumble you into the snow. But pretty soon you learn to keep them running along side by side and you can have a great time."

"Experts can run 35 or 40 miles an hour. The long, narrow wooden strips carry you right on top of the deepest snow. Men who have practiced can jump from 75 to 100 feet

Longer Coats Mark New Fall Suits And Fur and Embroidery Trim Them

By FLORENCE.

It is time for the proverbial early bird to begin to think about her fall wardrobe. The hat, of course, goes first consideration, and next comes the suit and after that, if one has unlimited means, a pair of seventeen or eighteen dollar boots may be bought. The season's hats will be made of satin velvet and velour, and the smartest ones will be of velour to match the suit or coat. The suits will be changed from the spring styles only in the length of the coat and the trimming. Coats will extend far below the hips and sometimes below the knees. Embroidery and braiding will be the predominant trimming feature, although fur will be used on the heavier suits for winter wear. The plain tailored suit for business, street and traveling wear will still be popular but the coat will be slightly longer than it has been for a few seasons and usually it will be unbelted. Embroidery, cartridge stitching and braiding will trim the suit for semi-dress and the elaborate suit will use draped coats, skirts and odd lines to obtain the desired effect. The materials which will be popular for fall are chevron, peach bloom, tinselone, silverstone, frost glow, spode cloth, and of course the old standard materials, such as tricotine, broadcloth, duvet, delaine, burella cloth, serge and men's wear materials. The approved shades for the coming season are: reindeer, anise, which is a shade of brown, beaver, burgundy, Santiago, Java, mocha, taupe, green, Natter, blue, navy, cherry, plum, and there are a few more. Browns in all tones predominate. Perhaps the prices of the new suits will interest many women more than the materials or the styles. In a large store which caters to the woman of average means the prices range from $39.50 to $285, and it may be said that the lowest priced suit is a smartly tailored durable garment which is well worth the price.

Aside from a single piece of furniture, the load was intact when the horses were stopped near the Dickey farm, about one-half mile from the accident. He is resting comfortably at the home of his employer, Ora Lee.

One evening the latter part of the week, Ora Lorthus, the "Newsy" who handles the Gazette in the village, showed considerable enterprise by bringing his papers for evening delivery from Janesville, several hours before the arrival of the train, thus affording the subscribers an opportunity to read the evening news while waiting for the arrival of the mail train.

THE only motor fuel used for airplanes is genuine "straight run" true gasoline.

Up there, where motor performance measures the difference between life and death, no trust is given to cheapened substitutes, or adulterated concoctions that have been squeezed out of petroleum dregs.

A motor fuel that gave the slightest indication of hard starting, or missed in running—that showed a trace of free carbon or a suspicion of kerosene—would not be given a moment's hazard.

RELATIVELY, those symptoms are as important to your automobile motor as to the airplane in the clouds.

They signify the same thing—mechanically. And if PERSONAL safety would decide you in one place, MOTOR safety should decide you in the other—forever against the dangers of mock motor fuel.

Is still obtainable. With all its genuine, "straight run" ease of starting and sureness of firing, its missless running, its delivery of maximum power and its freedom from carbon and kerosene, it means something more than mere convenience.

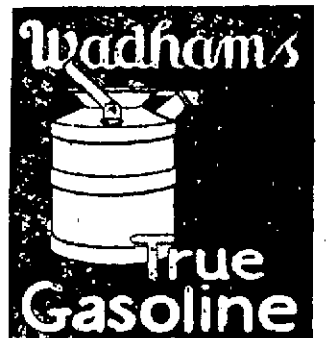

It means motor preservation—freeing your car from the shocks of missing, the power loss of carbon-clogged valves, the danger of bearings burned out and cylinders scored because of kerosene-diluted motor oil.

It is the gasoline of dependableness, of mileage, of safety, and by every test the gasoline of ultimate economy.

"Burning the Midnight Oil"

THAT, literally, is the reason why the American has won the proud distinction of being the best educated man in the world.

Because a cheap, dependable illuminating oil made from petroleum was developed first in the United States, the people of this country had the opportunity of studying late into the night long before such luxury was possible elsewhere.

The petroleum industry, in which the Standard Oil Company was a pioneer, has made it possible, even in remote places, for man to read, study and acquire knowledge in comfort, after the day's work is done.

The tremendous development of America shows that the American has "burned the midnight oil" to good purpose.

The seven men who manage the Standard Oil Company (Indiana), the 19,568 men and women who carry on the business, and the 4623 stockholders, all are proud of the fact that their Company has been, and is, such a potent influence in the development of the nation.

Today the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) operates the greatest and most complete refinery in the world, together with several others of lesser output.

Throughout 11 states the Company distributes the refined products so thoroughly that even those in the remote corners are able, at all times, to get their requirements at a low price.

Thus is shown another marked benefit accruing to all from the activities of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) as a public servant.
